

VISITS AND GUIDED TOURS

Every Thursday and Friday, there are guided tours around the former home of 'the Major'. During the guided tour, you are inspired by the story of her life and you have a unique opportunity to look around one of the oldest buildings in Amsterdam.

From the Major Bosshardt House, the tour also leads around the Red Light district in Amsterdam. During this guided tour, the link is made between the work of the Major in the past and the everyday work of The Salvation Army now.

CONTACT AND LOCATION

The premises are about five minutes' walk from the Central Station in Amsterdam.

The Major Bosshardt House is an old building and unfortunately not accessible to people with restricted mobility or wheelchair users.

MAJOR BOSSHARDT HOUSE

The Major Bosshardt House is located in the oldest brick building in Amsterdam. This unique site at the heart of the city centre has been part of The Salvation Army for a long time now. For years, the premises were the home and place of work of Major Bosshardt. Even today, her boundless love for others is a source of inspiration for many people. Visit the Major Bosshardt House and allow yourself to be caught up in the story of this extraordinary woman.

ALIDA MARGARETHA BOSSHARDT

Major Bosshardt was and is an icon of the work of The Salvation Army. With unbridled energy, determination and creativity, she gave very practical expression to her faith by placing her life at the service of vulnerable people in society.

The Major Bosshardt House is an experience centre: a place where visitors can be inspired to 'be there for others' through a glimpse into the life and work of Major Bosshardt and the work of The Salvation Army today. Changing exhibitions are organised. Major Bosshardt's 1970's style workplace can also be viewed.
